Next, locate the box that contains the fan's wiring. Often this will be situated in a hanging bracket on the ceiling. Open the box and identify the remote receiver. Depending on your fan, this part may be circular or a triangle. It should have wires connected on two sides. If the receiver's wires are attached to other wires within the box, remove any twist ties or wire nuts and undo the wire connections so that the receiver is no longer attached. Then, remove the remote receiver completely.
